

A timeless destination for celebrating life's most important moments.

The perfect destination for your perfect event.

The Pavilion at Walker Century Farms in Anderson, South Carolina is designed to accommodate a wide variety of events, ranging from picture-perfect weddings to unique business retreats to unforgettable children's birthday parties and more.

Fairytales do come true...

The year was 1896. Grover Cleveland was President of the United States. Henry Ford developed a revolutionary new vehicle, the Ford “quadricycle,” that would soon change the course of history. And in Anderson, South Carolina, young newlyweds William Walters Walker and his wife, Laura Kate Ellison Walker (“Katie”), purchased the land that is now known as Walker Century Farms.

On this fertile soil, the Walkers set out to create a farm, a home, a family and a legacy that would endure for generations. Like her husband, Katie was smart and enterprising, and in the early 1900s she opened the original Walker Market just across the road from where our new Market now stands. The Market wasn’t simply a place where everyone from the area came to get much-needed food and supplies, it was also a place where friends and families gathered to share stories and form the foundations of a vibrant community.

It is in that spirit that The Pavilion was built, 117 years after William and Katie took the first step on our family’s timeless journey. The Pavilion is not just another event venue; it’s a place steeped in history and tradition, a place where friends and family gather to share the special moments in life that build and nurture enduring relationships. Whether you’re planning a wedding or any other type of event, we’d like to welcome you out to The Pavillion at Walker Century Farms. We can’t wait to make you part of the family!
